He was a member of the Ledyard Congregational church and was a very regular attendant at the Sunday school. In early life he took great pride in raising plants, vegetables and flowers. After completing his preliminary education he entered Storrs Agricultural College and was graduated with high honors. But he wanted to learn more and entered upon research work and was stationed on Long Island. He assisted in preparing bulletins for the government and was called for service. He asked for a stay of two or three months to complete the preparation of his papers, which request was granted by the government.

After the completion of these bulletins he offered himself to the government and was assigned to the 20th regiment regular infantry. He was assigned to the medical corps, caring for first aid wounded. WESTERLY

The Third district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams, presiding, convened in Westerly, Friday morning. After calling the civil and criminal docket the court took a recess until one o'clock, after disposing of the case against Joseph Lombardo, who pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication. He was fined $3 and costs.

In the afternoon the case against Harold Coon, charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon, by shooting Gordon Batty at Watch Hill, was called. The complaint was changed to simple assault in order to get the case into the district court jurisdiction. To this complaint John C. Geary, counsel for Coon, entered a plea of nolo. Harry B. Agard, town counselor, said the assault was more of an accident than a malicious nature, and that all concerned would be satisfied if the accused were on probation. Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun, counsel for defense, stated that the recommendation of the prosecution was reached with the approval of the father of the Batty boy.

Attorney Geary told of the good character of the accused and of his hopeful future. That the shooting was not a malicious act, but more of an accident. This boy is not the owner of a gun but on the day of the shooting he was with Mr. Wilson in a boat and Mr. Wilson let him use the rifle to fire at a target. There was no one within his vision, when the boy was firing, and he did not know the Batty boy had been at the target. Afterward, the Coon boy had been used not to handle a firearm voluntarily for the next five years. Judge Williams placed the accused on probation and the case was continued for one month.

The cases were called against Harold Miner and Russell C. Duquid, charged in Richmond, Va., with the theft of an automobile from that city which was traced to Norwich where the accused remained two weeks with the automobile, without removing the Virginia registry plate. From that city they went to Providence where the machine was offered for sale. It was finally sold in New Haven where recovery was made. The automobile was stolen in December 19, and several months ago warrants for the arrest of Miner and Duquid were placed with Police Chief Brown. Duquid was arrested some time ago, but made his escape from the city. Miner was arrested while he was driving, leaving the officers in the car while he made his escape. Miner was arrested just after he had registered under the civil service law. Since then Duquid has surrendered. They were released on bonds of $1000 each, bonded as fugitives from justice. Armed with requisition papers signed by the governors of Virginia and Rhode Island, Sergeants Atkinson and Thurman of the Richmond detective service, were in court. They started for Richmond with their prisoners on the 31st train.

Eugene Alden arrested Sheriff John R. Wilcox, for breaking and entering the residence of Joseph Hoxie in the town of Charlestown, and committing larceny therein, pleaded guilty to the charge. He was adjudged probably guilty and held for trial at the November term of the superior court for Washington county. Bond was fixed at $1,500. Alden was recommitted to the Kingston jail.
